4 SMART TIPS

for Choosing the Right School for Your Child

Finding a school today can feel more like applying to college than simply enrolling in the neighborhood option. But with a thoughtful approach and some planning, the process can be more manageable—and even empowering.

Here are four practical tips to help you find a school that fits your child and your family.

1 Start Early and Do Your Homework

Schools, especially popular ones, can fill up quickly. Give yourself plenty of time to research, visit and apply. Starting early allows you to explore different programs, ask questions and avoid last-minute stress. Make sure to tour schools in person, observe classrooms if possible, and pay attention to how staff interact with both children and families.

2 Focus on Your Child's Unique Needs

Every child is different, and so are schools. Consider what's most important for your child—whether that's extra academic support, social-emotional learning, language services, strong extracurriculars or a nurturing environment. Think about how your child learns best and what kind of setting will help them thrive.

3 Look Beyond Test Scores

Academic performance is important, but it's only part of the picture. Look for schools that foster curiosity, creativity, independence and kindness. Explore what's being taught, how it's being taught, and whether the school values diversity and supports all types of learners. A welcoming, inclusive culture matters just as much as academics.

4 Consider Practical Logistics

Sometimes, practical factors play a big role in the decision. Things like location, transportation, school hours, after-care availability or proximity to a caregiver can all influence your choice. Use online tools—like enrollment guides from local school districts or private schools—to help compare options and find a good fit for your schedule.
